

Are you a PhD student in law or social sciences? Do you focus in your thesis on international criminal law? Would you like to discuss your PhD project or any section of your PhD thesis with ICL experts? Would you like to meet other PhD students focusing on a similar topic? And would you like to come to Prague?

If you answer YES to some of those questions, or even to all of them, you should consider responding to this

CALL FOR PAPERS:

PhD Training School on Contemporary Challenges to International Criminal Law

To be held at the Institute of International Relations in Prague, on 14-16 March 2013. The PhD Training School is organised within COST Action 1003: "International Law Between Constitutionalisation and Fragmentation: the role of law in the post-national constellation".

Applications should contain: name, institution, contact details (e-mail), title of the PhD thesis/project, title of the paper, and abstract of the paper (maximally 300 words).

Participants are expected to meet their expenses. COST project can, however, provide scholarship covering travel expenses, accommodation or both. PhD students who would like to be considered for the scholarship need to indicate this in the application and to justify their request.

Applications should be sent by e-mail to Dr. Veronika Bílková (bilkova@iir.cz) by 8 February 2013. Successful applicants will be notified by 15 February 2013. Final version of papers (maximally 2500 words) should be submitted by 28 February 2013.
